Doméstica Pierrette Hondagneu-Sotelo, 2001-04-26 As American women have entered the labor force in greater numbers the traditional work of wives and mothers cleaning houses and caring for children has gradually moved into the global marketplace Paid domestic work has largely become the domain of disenfranchised immigrant women of color Unlike the working poor who toil in factories and fields these women see touch and breathe the material and emotional world of their employers homes They scrub grout coax reluctant children to eat their vegetables launder and fold clothes dust vacuum and witness intimate family dynamics In this enlightening and timely work Pierrette Hondagneu Sotelo highlights the voices experiences and views of Mexican and Central American women who care for other people s children and homes as well as the outlooks of the women who employ them in Los Angeles All royalties from this book will be donated to the Domestic Workers Association a division of the Coalition for Humane Immigrant Rights of Los Angeles CHIRLA

Serving the Household and the Nation Shu-Ju Ada Cheng, 2006-01-01 Serving the Household and the Nation is an absorbing sociological study of the globalization of domestic service Using the case of Filipina domestics in Taiwan Cheng examines how nationalist politics shape the experience of migrant women under the context of globalization For migrant domestics it is often the state policy that creates their structural vulnerability in public and in private Cheng focuses on the question of how the intervention of the state and the development of nationhood shape the localization of domestic service and explores the nexus between homemaking and nation building This revealing book demonstrates how the management of foreign domestics is not only important for labor control but also central to the state s administration over alien subjects the development of nationhood and in this case study the changing ethnoscape in Taiwan

Shadow Mothers Cameron Lynne Macdonald, 2011-02-09 Shadow Mothers shines new light on an aspect of contemporary motherhood often hidden from view the need for paid childcare by women returning to the workforce and the complex bonds mothers forge with the shadow mothers they hire Cameron Lynne Macdonald illuminates both sides of an unequal and complicated relationship Based on in depth interviews with professional women and childcare providers immigrant and American born nannies as well as European au pairs Shadow Mothers locates the roots of individual skirmishes between mothers and their childcare providers in broader cultural and social tensions Macdonald argues that these conflicts arise from unrealistic ideals about mothering and inflexible career paths and work schedules as well as from the devaluation of paid care work

The Institutional Tradition in Labor Economics Dell P. Champlin, Janet T. Knoedler, 2018-10-24 While there are many economists in schools government unions and non profit organizations working in the institutional tradition

there has been no book that describes this tradition until now Editors Champlin and Knoedler have brought together prominent labor economists highly respected institutional economists and newer scholars working on such compelling issues as immigration wage discrimination and living wages Their essays portray the institutionalist tradition in labor as it exists today as well as its historical and theoretical origins The result is a major contribution to the literature of labor economics institutionalist economics and the history of economic thought Aid and the Help Dinah Hannaford,2023-04-25 Hiring domestic workers is a routine part of the expat development lifestyle Whether working for the United Nations governmental aid agencies or NGOs such as Oxfam Save the Children or World Vision expatriate aid workers in the developing world employ maids nannies security guards gardeners and chauffeurs Though nearly every expat aid worker in the developing world has local people working within the intimate sphere of their homes these relationships are seldom if ever discussed in analyses of the development paradigm and its praxis Aid and the Help addresses this major lacuna through an ethnographic analysis of the intersection of development work and domestic work Examining the reproductive labor cheaply purchased by aid workers posted overseas opens the opportunity to assess the multiple ways that the ostensibly giving industry of development can be an extractive industry as well Laboring in the Shadow of Empire Celeste Vaughan

Curington,2024-09-13 Laboring in the Shadow of Empire Race Gender and Care Work in Portugal examines the everyday lives of an African descendant care service workforce that labors in an ostensibly anti racial Europe and against the backdrop of the Portuguese colonial empire While much of the literature on global care work has focused on Asian and Latine migrant care workers there is comparatively less research that explicitly examines African care workers and their migration histories to Europe Sociologist Celeste Vaughan Curington focuses on Portugal a European setting with comparatively liberal policies around family settlement and naturalization for migrants In this setting rapid urbanization in the late twentieth century along with a national push to reconcile work and family has shaped the growth of paid home care and cleaning service industries Many researchers focus on informal work settings where immigrant rights are restricted and many workers are undocumented or without permanent residence status Curington instead examines workers who have accessed citizenship or permanent residence status and also explores African women s experiences laboring in care and service industries in the formal market revealing how deeply colonial and intersectional logics of a racialized and international division of reproductive labor in Portugal render these women hyper invisible and hyper visible as appropriate workers in Lisbon

For Better Or for Worse Hung Cam Thai,2008 Hung Cam Thai takes a closer look at marriage and migration with a specific focus on the unions between Vietnamese men living in the United States and the women who migrate to marry them Weaving together a series of personal stories he underscores the ironies and challenges that these unions face Page 4 of cover Book Review Index ,2003 Vols 8 10 of the 1965 1984 master cumulation constitute a title index The Mammy Fantasy Maria Seymour St. John,2004 Paid to Care Karla Anne Erickson,2004 Mexican Immigrants in the Labor Market Maria Luisa Amado, 2006 Amado examines the job seeking strategies of recent Mexican immigrants in Atlanta. She explores the resources available to job seekers within and outside their immigrant networks and the role of kinship during migration and settlement. Strong ties are primary sources of support and job information for new arrivals. Ties of kinship and paisanaje are effective work links among male workers involved in dense occupational networks of fellow immigrants. This is especially true among informal workers in industries that rely on abundant migrant labor. Women are less likely to benefit from these connections due to labor market and network segregation along gender lines. Latina/o Migration and Community Formation in Postwar Chicago Lilia Fernández, 2005 Alternative Press Index, 2003 Annual Review of Sociology Individuals, 2005-08 The 17 articles of this collection present the current state of research on various questions in the field written by scholars at American universities. The collection begins with an overview of the work and career of James S. Coleman and 1995 by Peter V. Marsden. Sociology Harvard U. A sampling of other topics featured includes identity politics. Love's Labor's Learned Clare Louise Stacey, 2004 U.C. Davis Law Review University of California, Davis. School of Law, 2006 Mexican Migrants and Their Parental Households in Mexico Paula Fomby, 2005 Annotation Fomby explores how U.S.-bound migrants participate in systems of intergenerational exchange with their families remaining in Mexico. Taking the perspective of migrants as adult children in their families of origin, she considers the factors associated with inception of migration careers and asks how migration by selected children affects the social and economic organization of the parental household. Fomby's review of theoretical and empirical research shows that the dominant focus on male labor migration overlooks how migrants continue to relate to and influence parents and siblings. She shows that migrant-sending parental households in Mexico are distinctive in their composition and that migrants continue to make significant economic contributions from abroad.
