Handbook of Research Methods in Diversity Management, Equality and Inclusion at Work Lize A.E. Booysen, Regine Bendl, Judith K. Pringle, 2018-08-31 Equality diversity and inclusion EDI have become features of organizations as a result of both legal and societal advances as well as neoliberal economic reasoning and considerations Current research approaches frequently fall short of addressing the challenges faced in EDI research and this benchmark Handbook brings up to date coverage of research methods in EDI and advances the development of research in the field      Women's Health in Canada Marina Morrow, Olena Hankivsky, Colleen Varcoe, 2008-05-03 In recent years healthcare professionals have recognized the distinctly different healthcare needs and concerns of men and women Women's health in particular has come into its own in the last two decades In Canada however there has been little available in the way of a general text on women's health This volume works toward filling that gap by providing a resource for teaching and understanding women's health in this country To lay out the methodological and theoretical foundations for their study editors Olena Hankivsky Marina Morrow and Colleen Varcoe bring together an interdisciplinary group of scholars and practitioners from economics anthropology sociology nursing political studies women's studies and psychology Contributors draw on the rich history of the Canadian women's health movement providing analysis of that history and of the emergent theory policy and practice Aimed at undergraduate and graduate students as well as practitioners the collection adopts an intersectional approach looking closely at social factors such as gender race ethnicity class sexuality and gender identity and analysing how they relate both to each other and to women's health Connections between the social economic and cultural contexts of women's lives and their physical spiritual and mental well being are a primary focus Providing a much needed resource for teachers students and practitioners of women's health in Canada this comprehensive volume makes an important contribution to the literature

Dealing Barbara Denton, 2001 Why do women become drug dealers Are they simply attempting to finance their own addictions or are the reasons more complex This unique book reveals a surprisingly complex set of stories about a diverse group of women who were attracted to the drug economy Dealing focuses on 16 women who the author met at the former women's prison Fairlea in inner suburban Melbourne Denton traces the lives of the women as they leave the prison rejoin the drug economy and sometimes return to jail This is a detailed account of why women enter the industry and how they run their drug businesses and manage complex relations with customers workers and the criminal justice system Dealing is a compelling account of an important part of Australia's illicit economy vividly written and revealing      Resources for Nursing Research Cynthia Clamp, Stephen Gough, 1999-09-20 Fully revised and updated the third edition of this invaluable bibliography of sources of literature for nurses includes over 2760 entries 64 per cent of which are new This comprehensive yet concise guide is designed for convenience and ease of use and covers all aspects of nursing and allied health research with accessible and informative entries compiled within three sections The first covers the process of literature searching libraries and tools print and electronic for accessing literature In the second methods of inquiry are presented The final section discusses issues surrounding nursing research The book includes an extended section on electronic sources as well as many web site addresses and is design      Social Research Tim May, 1993      Trade Unions and Social Research Keith Forrester, Colin Thorne, 1993 This book is a collection of papers based on a conference held in July 1991 the aim of which was to provide a forum to discuss examples of existing relationships between professional researchers and trade unions in a number of countries and to bring together researchers and trade unionists to explore the theoretical and practical problems experienced by both sides. The contents of the book reflect the variety of research experiences discussed at the conference. The first half contains chapters which explore theoretically the nature of research within a collaborative framework. In the second half lay trade unionists and researchers all use concrete examples to discuss either their experience of working collaboratively or to review the links between both sides in specific areas.

Disruptive Voices Michelle Fine, 1992. Very little but a little on lesbian issues. P Thorslev.

Reflecting on Research Practice Pam Shakespeare, Dorothy Atkinson, Sally French, 1993. Charts some of the hidden from view aspects of social research and explores many of the complex processes involved. The chapters range from developing ideas and negotiating with funders to building research relationships and disseminating findings.

Transcending Boundaries Pamela R. Frese, John M. Coggeshall, 1991. This volume compares and contrasts concepts of gender from a wide range of perspectives drawn from the natural sciences, the social sciences and the humanities. The contributors examine the complex process of sexual differentiation in an attempt to determine how feminine and masculine are defined and how these definitions contribute to and influence perceptions of social reality in various disciplines. Their essays explore how gender roles are created and how they influence the American way of life in such embedded cultural mores as the romance novel, images of the Virgin Mary, male inmates, the American wedding, contemporary art and architecture, 19th century patriarchy, economics and natural science. This is a timely, important and above all useful book that will provide students in women's studies and cultural studies with a solid introduction to central concepts and texts in gender studies and give them an equally important sense of the multiplicity of methodologies.

Angelika Bammer, Emory University. This volume breaks important new ground in the rapidly growing field of gender studies by comparing and contrasting concepts of gender from a wide range of perspectives drawn from the natural sciences, the social sciences and the humanities. The contributors, each a specialist in his or her discipline as well as in the area of gender studies, examine the complex processes of sexual differentiation to determine how feminine and masculine are defined and how these definitions contribute to and influence perceptions of social reality in various disciplines. United by an overall focus on the importance of gender constructs in shaping cultural ideology and social interaction, the essays explore how gender roles are created and how they influence the American way of life in such embedded cultural mores as the romance novel, images of the Virgin Mary, male inmates, the American wedding, contemporary art, nineteenth century patriarchy, economics and natural science. The essays are arranged so that disciplines and themes interrelate; each essay enhances the previous work and introduces the next. Overall, the book is arranged into three systematic approaches to gender studies. Four papers explore the way art, literature and ritual reflect gender beliefs and act as vehicles for their reinvention through time. Another set of essays more explicitly concerns the power that ideology has in recreating gender and associated beliefs and practices. Essays on nineteenth century patriarchy and on prison gender identities emphasize that both men and women must be viewed as products of their culture A final group of essays deal with gender and prestige or power structures as they have influenced the intellectual development of various disciplines and the individuals who are trained in those disciplines This section includes essays on the relationship between gender and science gender roles in economics feminist roles in religious studies and the emergence of women in architecture Taken together these papers offer an important new focus for students and scholars involved in studying the pervasive influence of gender across disciplines

Communication Research Methods in Postmodern Culture Larry Z. Leslie, 2010 Communication Research Methods in Postmodern Culture explores communication research from a postmodern perspective while retaining key qualitative and quantitative research methods The author uses easy to understand language to incorporate new research methods inspired by contemporary culture and includes review questions and suggested activities designed to help readers understand and master communication research The blend of new and traditional methods creates a book appropriate to the study of communication in an increasingly complex cultural environment
