Pre-Assessment: How will you determine prior knowledge?	Relation to Personal, Cultural, or Community Assets: How does this lesson "fit" your learners?	Theoretical Links: How do the supports you provide align with best practice?	Student Reflection: How will you provide for students to reflect upon their own learning (metacognition)?
KWL Chart- Students will complete a KWL Chart to determine what they already know about friendly letters, what they want to learn about friendly letters, and will return back to the KWL Chart at the end of the lesson to see what they learned about friendly letters.	My students will be using the writing process to learn about friendly letters in order to thank the PTO Members for all they do for us. This fits my students because the PTO is very involved in what goes on inside the school. Recently they helped do the Book Fair, Grandparent's Day Lunch, Muffins for Mom, and most recently the Harvest Festival.	Vygotsky believed in learning being like a ladder. You cannot get from the ground to the top of the house without a ladder He called this scaffolding. By scaffolding the lessons you not only start them off easier and get more difficult, but you are taking the responsibility off the task and putting it on the student. I do this in this unit by starting off writing	Students will reflect upon their learning at the end of the day when we look back at the KWL Chart in order to see what they have learned about friendly letters.
